TRANSITION TO COLLEGE

Research shows that one year of college-level credit, plus a credential, made the biggest difference or “tipping point” in the earnings after leaving college. High school dropouts earn 28% less than a high school graduate, 42% less than someone with an Associate’s degree and 56% less than someone with a Bachelor’s degree. The Adult Education Division transition office works to move our GED graduates into postsecondary education or training for family-sustaining employment and career advancement.
